give two prizes of £15 and £5 for the two best essays on trade unionism, the labour laws of the country, &c. A period of six weeks will be ellowed for writing the essays. The excellent practical work, "Little Dinners," by Mary Hooper, published by Messrs. King and Co., has speedily reached its sixth edition. The same publishers have issued un eighth edition of " Thoughts for the Times," by the Rev. H. R. Hawsis. The death is announced of Mr. Heary Feist, better known to the racing public as the writer | who takes up a book from a library ever, trouof the racing articles signed " Hotspur" in the bles himself as to the antecedents of the volume; Daily Telegraph and " Angur" in the Sporting, Life, and a contributor to many provincial newspapers. He was also the originator of the Sporting Life.

The Stadel Institute at Frankfort-on-the-RECONSTRUCTION OF SYMOND'S INN Mairie has accidized during the past year several valuable paintings by old masters. One of these is attributed to Jan Van Eyek. The picture represents St. Jerome with his lion in a handscape, kneeling before a crucifix. Another picture is believed to be by Jan Sceen.

Mr. Holman Hunt has recently been engaged in painting a portrait of his son. The child represented on his return from a successful birds'-nesting expedition. He is accompanied by a couple of Pomeranian dogs. As one leaps up to him, the boy throws himself back, laughing wildly, and holding out the nest in triumph, A work is preparing for immediate publicaion under the spection of the Committee of Council on Education, containing twenty large photographs of the finest examples of ancient needle point and pillow lace, which were shown at the International Exhibition of 1874. The work is under the superintendence of Mr. Alan Cole, by whom the letterpress is written.-

Her Majesty the Queen has contributed £50 towards the fund for the erection of a new school of art at Ryde, the foundation-stone of which was laid during the summer by the Princess Royal. Her Majesty has also consented to a number of works of art to be sent from her private collection at Windsor to an art exhibition in the Town Hall, Ryde. Several articles are also expected from the Imperial Court of Berlin. The well-known painter, Mr. J. B. Bedford has been elected to the Professorship of Draw. ing at Queen's College, London, on the resignation of Mr. Cave Thomas. While congratulaing the college on the accession to its staff, we (Academy) cannot but express a bope that the duties of the professorship will not interfere with the production of these scholarly und graceful works of which Mr. Bedford now exhibits only too few.

It appears that glass placed before pictures may, under certain circumstances, effectually preserve them against fire; of this a remark able instazed occurred at the burning of Wood field House, Strentham. In this building, Mr. Wallis's picture, "The Stone-breaker," deposited with others, and, being glazed, escaped without the slightest injury; while other works, unglazed, surrounding it, were scorohed, blistered, or utterly destroyed.

The question of the removal of Temple Bar cannot be viewed apart from the New Courts. which, as was pointed out, will be set back 10ft. from the present line of frontage, and it seems to be taken for granted that there will be some widening of the thorough fare on the opposite side (the desirability of which cannot be doubted), Hongkong Hotel Company's Shares $50 per and the consequent rebuilding of the elevations. These considerations alone virtually settle the question of the Bar in its present site and form, to say nothing of the incongruity of its architectural character with that of the New Law Courts, and we can scarcely bring ourselves to believe that the whimsical design referred to at the Court of Common Council of boisting the Bar over an archway spanning the thoroughfare can have been received with favour in any | mee-bop-kee to local trader. serious sense. AIR IN CLOTHING. Dr. Max von Pettenkofer states that of equal surfaces of the following materials, he finds them permeated by various quantities of air (the most porous, flannel, such as is used oreffigy for the monument of the late Bishop in dinarily for clothing, being taken at 100), thus: "Flannel, 100; linen of medium flueness, 58; silk, 40; buckskin, 58; tanned leather, 1; the public places of Caen, by subscription, chamois leather 51." > AGENCY OF ANIMALS IN THE SPREAD OF CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. Among the many agents for the spread of infectious diseases are, it seems, "our domesticpets." For the propagation of fever a dog is sometimes as bad, or worse, than a drain, and a case is recently referred to in the Sanitary Record in which sourlet lever was carried from one child to another by a favourite retriever. The dog had been reared in a house where scarlatina prevailed, and was subsequently given to a friend of the family. Shortly after one of the children in the dog a new home was attacked with malignant scarlating, and died. Disinfectants were used plentifully, and every precaution taken to prevent a recurrence of form and died. Extracts. CHILDHOOD, Dear childhood! beautiful childhood! Sweet ern of delight, Gay rambler through the wildwood With green leaves glancing bright; Fair strayer on the pebbled shore When rolls the sinlight sea,

Olnd day dreams I can share no more 'Mid childhood's glaumourio. Then the brair-rose was my scoptro, My throne the broomy hill. And I quaffed the flashing nectar From the violet-bordered rill; The song-birds were my trumpoters That sang on every tree, And my armies were the daisies

That dappled the green lea. My banners were the golden beams That herald forth the dawn; My jewels were the dow that gleams Like pearls on the lawn; My altar was the martyr's stone Far from the beaten road

Where oft I've pour'd unheard alone An artless prayer to God! I knew not of the proud and great That throng d the midnight hall, Nor of the crafty plots of State That keep mankind in thrall I loved the singing of the bird, The humming of the bee-What joyful thoughts within me stirr'd At nature's minstrelsy, Childhood's a bright, a glorious dream, A type of higher life, ... That gilds our lot with many a beam

And cheers the heart of manhood's prime

And lighteth up with rays sublime The glazing eye of age. JAMES NORVAL. A BRIDE RIDING "PICKABACK." In the midst of the doubts of Hamees

STORIES ABOUT ANIMALS. AN AFFECTIONATE CAT.

The cat had some kittons, and one of them was taken ill, and apparently in a dying state. The mother did all that she could for it, and then, finding all her efforts useless, brought the sick kitten to her mistress, laid it in her lap, and left it in her care. The lady accepted the charge, nursed the kitten through its illness, and at last was able to give it back to its mother quite restored to health. Some time afterwards the lady herself was soized with illness, and was unable (331 %).) on Local Risks only. to leave her bed.
